

Arthur M. Scully Managing Director

With over 30 years of experience, Arthur Scully is well known for his ability to cultivate strategic thinking and creative partnerships that result in exceptional philanthropic experiences. Over the course of his career, and in partnership with colleagues, trustees and volunteers, he has successfully led development programs, established supporting organizations and facilitated mergers to increase organizational impact.

Arthur most recently served as Vice President of Development & Communications for Magee-Womens Research Institute and Foundation where he helped grow revenue from $250,000 to $13.5 million. Arthur initiated the communications, public relations and messaging strategies across electronic, social media and print platforms that supported the fundraising strategy behind the Magee Movement, a national awareness and major gifts strategy.

During his 23 years at St. Margaret Hospital, Arthur served as Vice President of the hospital before creating the St. Margaret Foundation and serving as its first Executive Director, a position he held for nine years. He successfully recruited the founding board members, developed the governance model and executed the organization's fundraising and communications programs.

Board Membership & Community Involvement

Arthur is widely recognized as a passionate leader in his community having served as a board member of the Fox Chapel Area School District, the Western Pennsylvania Conservancy, Family Resources, the Fox Chapel Kiwanis Club and the Aspinwall Chamber of Commerce. He currently serves as a trustee of the Carnegie Hero Fund Commission and as President of the Advisory Board of POWER, the Pennsylvania Organization for Women in Early Recovery.

Arthur has twice served on merger committees to help like-minded nonprofit organizations join forces to create greater impact in the community.

Personal

Lifelong residents of Pittsburgh, Arthur and his wife Debbie have two grown children, Dillon and Morgan who are pursuing their passions in Idaho and Colorado.
